

Universe Gets All-American Honors

Critical Service Praises Editorials, Coverage, Decries Social Emphasis

An All-American honor rating has been given this year's Universe by the Associated Collegiate Press critical service, it was learned Friday.

THIS HIGHEST possible rating was given to only eight college daily newspapers in the nation.

In making the award, the critical service singled out coverage, feature style, copy reading, make-up and editorials for special praise.

AN EXTRA AMOUNT of awards were awarded the paper for its creativeness, especially for Christmas Gift Special Edition and the Christmas short story contest.

The paper was criticized on balance for giving too much front page space to dances and social affairs. Other criticisms were on type display and giving too many publicity pictures.

THE RATING was given for first semester of the year, as judged were submitted in two weeks of December selections.

Editor of the Daily Universe is C. Woodward, and Rita Miller is managing editor. Editors during first semester were Chris Allred, campus editor; Danny Moore, sports editor; Millard Wilde, feature editor; Julie Pingree and Kathy society editors; and Jean-Barney, news editor.

THE UNIVERSE won an All-American honor rating for first time last year also.

LEONTYNE PRICE

Leontyne Price . . .

New Metropolitan Opera Soprano Will Give Concert at BYU Friday

The newest star of Metropolitan Opera will perform at Brigham Young University this evening as one of the most important final Fine Arts Festival programs.

THE IS Leontyne Price, who made her debut at the Metropolitan just this season, will perform at 8:15 p.m. in Smith house. Activity cards are required for attendance of students.

The concert is part of the BYU-Community series.

IT HAS BEEN only eight years since she was a student at Julliard School of Music in New York. Since then she has been hailed nationally as a star of opera, as soloist, major symphony orchestras, on television, in concert and as a recording artist.

She has been praised by critics for her exceptional beauty and range of her voice."

and her "penetrating artistry, basic musicianship and personal charm."

WHEN MISS PRICE was invited by Rudolf Bing to sing at the Metropolitan Opera and made her debut as Leonora in "Il Trovatore" in January 1961, she became prima donna of nine of the greatest opera houses in the world.

Her debut into opera, however, was on television for the NBC Opera Company in 1955, when she played in "Tosca."

SINCE THEN she has sung on the stages of the San Francisco Opera, the Vienna Staatsoper, London's Covent Garden, Italy's Opera Arena at Verona, the Salzburg Festival in Austria, the Chicago Lyric Theater, La Scala, Milan, Italy's world renowned opera house, and the Metropolitan.

Here rare artistry has made her a favorite with today's leading maestros and conductors.

Rescuers to Keep Mum So First U.S. Spaceman Can Tell His Own Story

ABOARD U.S.S. LAKE CHAMPLAIN, May 7 (UPI)—A seven-ship navy task force steams to sea today to pluck America's first spaceman from the Atlantic. It has orders not to speak to him unless he speaks first.

Psychologists and doctors want the first astronaut to tell his own story in his own way, without having it colored by words and thoughts conveyed to him after his return from flight.

SO, FROM THE first retrievers, who probably will be marine helicopter pilots, to all others of the 5,000 men aboard the flotilla who may come in contact with him, the orders are: no words to the astronaut right after recovery unless he asks a question.

The 40,000-ton carrier and six destroyers headed for positions down the Atlantic missile range from Cape Canaveral, Fla., calculated to put them in the right place to pick up the astronaut as soon as possible after he hits the water.

REAR ADMIRAL G. P. Koch, commander of the task force, said he is confident his group will get the astronaut out of the water quickly, providing the firing goes as expected. The capsule will be aimed at a circle eight miles in radius around the carrier.

If all does go as scheduled, the first man to see the astronaut may be Wayne Koons, a 27-year-old Marine lieutenant from Lyons, Kansas.

Deadline Arrives For Applications

Nomination applications for 1961 Annals of Achievement must be in the AWS office Monday at 4 p.m. accompanied by two letters of recommendation: one from the nominator and one from a bishop, teacher, etc.

THIS YEAR'S event is supporting the theme, "Life's Artistry," and the night of honors is scheduled for May 10.

One girl from each class and one from each college will be selected on the basis of outstanding leadership and service by a committee of faculty members and students.

Y Day Fun Will Include Games, Lunch, Dance

It will be a big spring cleaning for Brigham Young University and Provo Wednesday when thousands of Y Day workers go to work.

CLEANING will extend from cleaning the botany pond to shining windows at the city garage. Most important, however, is the whitewashing of the block Y, in which 11 BYU wards will work together to form a bucket brigade passing white-wash up the mountain and empty buckets for refills down the mountain.

After working, which begins at 7 a.m., when the first wards head Y-ward, fun and relaxation will be the reward. Current plans, however, call for so much fun that there is a question of who is going to get the work done.

LUNCH will be served in the stadium to all students who have Y Day passes, earned only with the application of elbow grease, and activity cards. Students who do not have activity cards will not be admitted even if they do have a lunch pass.

Games, faculty races on balloon-tired bicycles, songs and the traditional tug-of-war will take place on the football field during lunch hour.

AT 4:30 p.m., the newly-added car show will be held in the Smith Fieldhouse parking lot. Entrants will be competing in four classes and four trophies will be given. Entries are open until Tuesday and may be made by signing on the bulletin board, basement Student Service Center.

Evening will include the traditional Blue-White football game, giving students a first peek at next year's football team, and an open-air dance on the tennis court. Dorm hours are extended until 1 a.m. for on-campus women.

Climbing, Water Safety Part of Survival Class

Need to know: how to purify water, make smoke signals, build a pine bough lean-to or climb up a mountain by rope?

THESE ARE the varied activities being taught in a 20-hour survival training course at Brigham Young University. The course is on Tuesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. and lasts until June 27.

Sponsoring the course are the Adult Education Center and Physical Education Dept. They are working with the Utah State Fish and Game Dept. Don D. Shaw, BYU health instructor, and A. Lee Robertson, field instructor for the Fish and Game Department, are in charge of the course.

THE COURSE will cover everything necessary for survival, according to the instructors.

For instance, training in use of flares, fire and smoke signals will prepare the future outdoorsmen to get help if they are lost. Water safety includes basic instruction in swimming and in fairly new "survival" necessity water skiing.

CLIMBING instructions will actually be a brief course in mountain climbing. Students will even be taught how to use rope while climbing and other climbing techniques.

One end of the fieldhouse will reverberate with the sound of rifle fire as members learn first aid safety and shooting techniques.
